

casting@pastpreservers.com

Past Preservers People

Dr. Paul Harrison

Egyptologist, British

Bio:

Dr Paul Harrison is an archaeologist, Egyptologist, presenter and writer, with over ten years of experience in public speaking and teaching. Paul's book 'Profane Egyptologists', traces the story of the revival of ancient Egyptian religion and cults, and is due for publication in 2015. His lectures have appeared in periodicals and magazines such as BBC History Magazine's 'Top Ten things to do', and he has been interviewed on national radio and international podcasts from the USA.

Education:

Paul has a PhD in Egyptian Archaeology, graduating from University College London in 2012, in addition to a Master's Degree awarded with distinction in 2007. His undergraduate studies were in Environmental Science, and he is a fully trained arborist.

Media Experience:

Paul wrote and presented 'Attila, Scourge of God' for SEGA's highly successful Total War video game series. A producer on several commercial projects, he is currently wrapping up his documentary on Cleopatra's Needle, also written and presented by Paul. In addition to his passion for history, Paul is an enthusiastic performer, appearing in several ambitious short films, and even a feature film, having worked alongside such actors as Rebecca Hall, Olivia Poulet and Spartacus' Simon Merrells.

Professional Experience:

Paul has worked as a guest lecturer at UCL's Institute of Archaeology, an examiner for the University of Arts, London, and tour guide for the Petrie Museum of Egyptology

casting@pastpreservers.com