Past Preservers People

Jessica McGinn

Archaeologist & Historian, Canadian

Bio:

Jessica says 'I fell in love with archaeology along with thousands of other people watching Harrison Ford use his fists and wit to find hidden treasures around the world. Real archaeology is much less like the movies, but a lot more rewarding. I have had the opportunity to work in Greece, Egypt, and Great Britain and the privilege to explore everything from Minoan palaces to medieval chanel chapels. I especially love working with the public and Past Preservers has provided me a way to combine my passion for history and film as a presenter.'

Education:

M.Sc. in Human Osteology and Funerary Archaeology at University of Sheffield

B.A. (Hons) in Near Eastern and Classical Archaeology at Wilfred Laurier University

Media Experience:

Jessica recently appeared as an Expert contributor on Spike TV's Egyptian Vice.

Professional Experience:

Jessica is currently an Administrator at the ELTC, University of Sheffield. In her spare time she volunteers at her local Museum's Outreach and Curation department.
